Mr. Gibbs is a sought-after lecturer and educator as well as an award-winning interior designer and interior design product innovator. Asked why he devotes so much time to preparing lectures and seminars for consumer groups and the interior design industry, he responded, “I have been teaching at Parsons School of Design one night a week since 1988. I began to expand my lecture venues in 1990 with appearances for charity functions and industry tradeshow when I realized that there is a need to help educate the public about good design. I also get a kick out of meeting people and sharing the years of industry knowledge I have amassed in my gray cells!”
